INDEX TO VOL. LXIX.

Amatorial Poet of the Sixteenth Century, An, 483.

America, Woman in, review of Mr. Hepworth Dixon's work, 279.

Athlone and Aughrim, 155.

Anglo-Saxon Leechdoms: Medicine and Astronomy in the Dark Ages; Medicine in Classic Times; Preservation of the Anglo-Saxon Treatises; Charms; Prognostics; Dreams; Wort-Cunning; Animal Leechdoms; Starcraft, 519-538.

Chapter on Playwrights, A, 573.

COMETH UP AS A FLOWER. Conclusion. Chaps. XXIV. to XXVIII., 38-50.

Eccentricities of the Sixteenth Century, 297.

Garrick—a Round of Characters: Macbeth; "Venice Preserved;" "The Orphan;" "Abel Drugger;" Hamlet, 65-84. Garrick—a Manager at Home; King John, 212-231.

Glastonbury Abbey, Past and Present. The Rise and Influence of English Monasticism: the Norman Church; the Norman Abbots, 87-105. The Wiclif Period, 691.

Irish Question, Recent Expositions of: Pamphlets on the Land Question, by Lords Dufferin, Rosse, and Lifford, 231-240.

Ireland, Rifle Competitions in, 342.

Irish Celts, Legendary Fictions of, 84.

King Cormac, The Fortunes of: How Cormac chose a wife; how Cormac lost and recovered his Throne; the Surgery of the Early Celts; a Rash Experiment, 588-594.

Legendary Fictions of Irish Celts, reviewed, 84.

Libraries of the Middle Ages and their Contents: The Care bestowed on the Libraries; the Rich Libraries of the Begging Brothers; the Sorbonne; the Educational Census of the Fourteenth Century; Dialectics, 398-413.

Lingering Scottish Superstitions, 333.

Long Years Ago—a poem, 533.

Minor Brethren, The: Part I., 434; Part II., 562.

NEVER FOR EVER: Chap. XIX., At the Manoir, 106; Chap. XX., Heart's Ease; Deceived; Perfect Love, 200-213; Chap. XXIII, Waiting Still; Chap. XXIV., On the Rocks; Chap. XXV., A Faint Heart; Chap. XXVI., The Rivals; Chap. XXVII., Little Beginnings; Chap. XXVIII., Never; Chap. XXIX., A Broken Hope, 311-333. Chaps. XXX. to XXXVII., 380. Chaps. XXXVIII. to XLIV., 498. Chaps. XLV. to LI., 622-639.

Norman Church and Norman Abbots, The, 87.

NUMBER FIVE BROOKE-STREET: Book First, Chap. XXXI., A Conference; Chap. XXXII., The St. Ryders at Home, 59. Chaps. XXXIII. to XXXV., 171. Book Second, Chaps. I. and II., 288. Chaps. III. to IX., conclusion, 446.

Old Fireside Stories of Wexford, The; The Giant and his Royal Servants; The Lazy Beauty and her Aunts, 3. The Three Gifts; The Princess in the Cat-Skins; The Hermit and the Robber; The Music of Heaven, 347.

Pamphlets on Irish Land Question, reviewed, 231.

Parisian Book-Lore in the Fourteenth Century; how Townspeople obtained liberty to breathe; Royal Patrons of the Horn-Book; The Kings Cherish Letters; The Great Book-Collector, Charles V.; Translations encouraged; Paris Colleges and their Patrons; Wranglers of the Dark ages; Growth of Libraries; How books were bought and borrowed; 21-37.

Parisian Problems, Solutions of Some, 594.

Parish-school System, The Scottish, 553.

Paris Censorship since the Revolution, sans Culotte Spectacles; Improvement under the Empire; The Plays of the Restoration, 243.

PARTIES AND THE COMING SESSION; the Break-up of the Liberal party, 115; Reform Speculations, 115; Reorganization of the Army, 116; Conservatives and constitutional modifications, 116; Fenianism and its Causes, 119; An Unscrupulous Opposition, 120.

Phases of Old English Life, 681.

Portraits, Two—a satirist and an actor, 465.

Playwrights, A Chapter on, 573.

POETRY: Another Year, 20; Lament for my Mistress's Sparrow—Catullus, Ode III., 113; Organ, The, 181; Song, 258; A Deathbed, 287; My Violet, 413; Sonnet, Spring, 445; Long Years Ago, 533.

Railways and the State, 711.

Reviews:—"Legendary Fictions of the Irish Celts," by P. Kennedy, 84; Pamphlets of Lords Dufferin, Rosse, and Lifford, on the Irish Land Question, 231; Mr. Hepworth Dixon's "America," 279.

Sir Thomas More, 603.

Some Romances of Irish History, 639.

Superstitions and Legends of the North of England; our superstitions date from Pagan times; Days of Good and Evil Omen; Sundry Laws of the Wise Men and Wise Women; Witches and their Craft, 363–379.

Spain, Modern Writers of, Cervantes remembered too late; the Modern Novel; Donna Cæcilia de Faber; Rustic Tales, Don Antonio de Trueba; Satire, Don Jose Gonzales de Tejada; History, Don Antonio Cavanilles; The Drama, Don Adelardo Lopez de Ayala, 51–59.

The Tenants of Malory. By J. S. Le Fanu, Author of "Uncle Silas," "Guy Deverell," "The House by the Churchyard," &c. Chap. I., Concerning two Ladies who sat in the Malory Pew; Chap. II., All that the Draper's Wife could tell; Chap. III., Home to Ware; Chap. IV., On the Green of Cardyllian; Chap. V., A Visit to Hazelden; Chap. VI., Malory by Moonlight; Chap. VII., A View from the Refectory Window; Chap. VIII., A Night sail; Chap. IX., The Reverend Isaac Dixie; Chap. X., Reading an Epitaph; Chap. XI., Farewell, 123; Chap. XII., In which Cleve Verney waylays an old Lady; Chap. XIII., The Boy with the Cage; Chap. XIV., News about the Hon. Arthur Verney; Chap. XV., Within the Sanctuary; Chap. XVI., An Unlooked-for Visitor, 259; Chap. XVII., They Visit the Chapel of Penruthyn again; Chap. XVIII., Cleve again before his Idol; Chap. XIX., Cleve Verney takes a bold step; Chap. XX., His Fate; Chap., XXI., Captain Shrapnell; Chap. XXII., Sir Booth Speaks, 414; Chap. XXIII., Margaret has her Warning; Chaps. XXIV., XXV., In which the Ladies peep into Cardyllian; Chap. XXVI., In the Oak Parlour—a meeting and a parting; Chap. XXVII., Judæus Apella; Chap. XXVIII., Mr. Levi visits Mrs. Mervyn; Chap. XXIX., Mr. Benjamin Levi recognizes an acquaintance, 534; Chap. XXX., A Council of three; Chap. XXXI., Mr. Dingwell arrives; Chap. XXXII., Mr. Dingwell makes himself comfortable; Chap. XXXIII., The Lodger and his Landlady; Chap. XXXIV., In which Mr. Dingwell puts his hand to the poker; Chap. XXXV., Cleve Verney sees the Chateau de Cresseron; Chap. XXXVI., She comes and speaks, 658–680—(to be continued.)

West Highland Folk Lore:—The Ancient Celts and their Stories, 183; difficulty of collecting Oral Fiction, 184; A poor Harvest in Man, 185; Philosophy of Gallic Fiction, 186; James MacPherson tenderly handled, 187; The Genuine Ossianic Remains, 189; Preservation of the Old Lays, 190; Identity of Irish and Highland Fiction, 192.

Dublin: Printed by Alexander Thom, 87 & 88, Abbey-street.

XUM